The carnest support which the loyal citizens of the United States, irrespective of former political stilliations, have rendered the Republican party and the cause of sound money in the campaign about to end justifies an expression from those who have been called upon to conduct it. No campaign since the War of the Rebellion has presented such great responsibilities to those entitled to the elective franchise. The dangerous principles enunciated by the Chicago platform, which proposes not only a debasement of the currency but the destruction of the highest judicial authority in the land, have justified good citizens, irrespective of past party preferences, in uniting to rebuke those who would thus endanger the very foundation of our National organization.

Abandoning their time-honored principles of a to rebuke those who would thus endanger the very foundation of our National organization.

Abandoning their time-honored principles of a strict construction of the Constitution, the supporters of that platform propose a system which endangers the very life of the Constitution and of the Nation itself. The proper enforcement of law, recognition of the highest tribunal of the land. It maintenance of a high and unvarying standard of our medium of exchange, the payment of obligations, public and private, in a currency equal to that contemplated when they were made, are all repudiated and denounced, both by that platform and the candidate placed upon it. Their appeals to prejudice, to selfishness and to passion, the efforts to array the employe against his employer, and the laborer against that which furnishes him the desired labor, have led good citizens, without respect to party lines, and thoughtful workingmen, irrespective of the class of their employment, to array themselves against the methods which would endanger government and property rights and the employment which and property rights and the employment which

It is gratifying to know that the two classes It is gratifying to know that the two classes of citizens to whom these appeals have been most strongly directed, the farmers and the workingmen of the cities and towns, have resented the imputations which have been placed upon them by the assumption that they desire to deal falsely with those with whom they have business relations or with the people of the Nation. The proposition that the farmer may repudiate a portion of his obligations by the coinage of a dollar worth but half that which he agreed to pay has been as indignantly rejected as has that which assumed that the workingman held principles which he was ashamed to avow and which are dangerous to the peace of the Nation.

and which are dangerous to the peace of the Nation.

The developments of the closing week of the campaign leave no doubt that the judgment of an overwhelming majority of the people of the Nation is against the platform and candidate of repudiation and National dishonor. It now remains with the voters to register at the polis their answer to the attemps to excite passion, prejudice and selfishness for the benefit of a few who are willing to destroy National honor and endanger National existence for their personal ambitions and individual profit. Good citizens in every section and of every party have united in publicly expressing themselves upon this subject. Their duty now is to do so in such a manner as will forever put to an end further attempts in this line.

There is but one way of doing this, and that is at the poils. While each man has his especial field in the preliminary work of the campaign, the duty of Election Day is common to all. No man, however much he has done in influencing others, can neglect his personal duty at the polls, and no citizen, however humble or devoted to employment of business, should fail to exercise his privilege and duty on Election Day. It is not merely a privilege, but a duty. And while it is the duty of every good citizen to express his will at the polls on all occasions, that duty was never more serious or important than now. Sound arguments and expressions of loyalty count for nothing unless those who offer them or are convinced by them exercise that universal privilege of participating in the actual direction of the Government by voting on Elecon of the Government by voting on Elec-direction of the Government by voting on Election Day.

It is hoped, therefore, that all good citizens will join hands on Tuesday in maintaining the honor of the Nation by registering their ballots in favor of that candidate who has been honored by the support of loyal men of all parties—William McKinley. The issue is between two men and two platforms, the one representing National honor, good government, sound money and sound principles; the other standing for doctrines dangerous to the peace and prosperity of the Nation, and promising only a system which must debase the currency, destroy business and end employment. It is, as has been recently said by Major McKinley himself, "a time when the voice of the partisan is hushed in the chorus of patriotism which sounds from one end of the country to the partisan is hushed in the chorus of patriotism which sounds from one end of the country to the other." Let every loyal citizen take this thought to the polls with him on Election Day, and the country will be saved from the danger which confronts it, and saved by that same loyal devo-

Whereas, We are about entering the final windup of the most exciting campaign for the sciection of a President and Vice-President of our country, and some of the so-called leaders are trying to impress it upon the minds of the toiling masses that the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 is the final solution of the labor problem, and,

Whereas, We have given the subject a careful consideration and do not propose to follow blindly a sentiment that will in no possible way better our condition, and our mission in the labor movement is to progress in our way and do our own thinking; and,

Whereas, Accusations have been made against Mark A. Hanna as being a labor crusher, and inasmuch as one of the unions he is charged with crushing is the Cleveland surface railroad men, of which Concord, N. H., Oct. 31.-The political campaign in this State has been the quietest ever known in a Presidential year. By far the greater activity has been manifested by the Republicans. The dis financial plank of the Chicago platform disheartened the rank and file, and in many places they did not keep up their organization. The Repub-licans placed speakers in all sections of the State, more than three hundred addresses having been Those who spoke on that side included Senators Chandler and Gallinger, Congressmen Baker and Sulloway, Congressmen Walker and Barrett, of Massachusetts, and Curtis Guild, jr., of Boston the principal speakers being Colonel Henry O. Kent, of Lancaster, candidate for Governor; John E. Nash, of Conway, candidate for Congress in the 1st District; Samuel B. Page, of Woodsville; John P. Bartlett, of Manchester; Frank K. Hobbs, of Ossipee, and Colonel C. W. Nickerson, of Boston. The Democratic managers profess satisfaction at the present outlook, and will not concede McKinley a majority of more than 5,000, while Colonel Kent, they say, will run much stronger than Bryan, and press his Republican opponent hard. Substantial gains will be made, they say, in both branches of the Legislature, and they claim some of the countles of the State which were carried by the Republicans in the landslide of 1894. ### WILL FORECLOSE FARM MORTGAGES.

CONNECTICUT'S SCHOOL FUND THREATENED BY

THE PREE-SILVER MADNESS. New-Haven, Oct. 31 (Special) .- Every Ohio farmer who has his farm mortgaged to the Connecticu School Fund will be in trouble if free silver is so cured. The school fund of this State, amounting to $2,100,000, will be practically cut in two by free silver All the Ohio mortgages held by the School Fund Commission will be foreclosed or ing about 6 per cent. Although there is no gold clause in the contracts with the Western farmers, there is a clause that states that the value of fund shall not be impaired by the mortgagor. The Commission will demand the insertion of a gold clause at once if the country elects a free-silver Government. Connecticut holds, in loans from the State School Fund, almost exactly the same amount as does Obio and Indiana, the sum of $300,000. The loans are all demand and can be foreclosed immediately. This will be done like a flash if free-silver rulers are chosen next Tuesday and within a week foreclosures will be begun. The remainder of the school fund is held in National bank securities. Loans to both surance Company from all the States were finally only and Connecticut farmers have been refused in tabulated yesterday. They have stated that they will make no new contracts until it is zettled that the financial integrity of the country is safe.

The loans were made in money carned and maintained under the gold basis and as such they will be preserved by the School Fund Commission. The income from the $2,100,000 of the invested funds pays annually to the school children of Connecticut the sum of 45 cents each. If this were cut off, taxes for public schools would in some places of the State, be doubled.

The signals will consist of red, white, green and orange lights, formed into combinations to fashion a signal code readily understood from the key given herewith. Should the night not be clouded, the code can be read at the distance away already stated, since the lights will be flung to the eye from a point 500 feet above The Tribune Building.

The returns from Maine to California and from Washington to Florida in every interest ing and instructive phase will be signalled in the sky. The answer to the silver craze may be read, as it were, in the stars. The lights burn each three minutes The principle on which the code is built up is a simple one, and will be readily comprehended from the following key: SIGNAL CODE.

The X in the code below indicates in each case colored light. The O indicates a white light. The green, to indicate Bryan; and orange for Palmet green, to indicate Bryan; and orange for Paimer.

The lights will be displayed in a perpendicular string. Read the code from left to right, as in ordinary print; the left-hand light will be at the top; the others will beam below, in the order stated.

GENERAL SIGNALS: In view of the fact that various States will not be heard from definitely until a late hour, provision is made in the code for a few general signals, showing the drift of the scattering returns received early in the evening. This class of signals will be easily distinguished from all others, because each one will contain a group of colored

That State is represented in the code by the figures 23, and these figures will be shown on the same principle as in the strokes of a fire a arm. At the top of the string there will be two white indicating the figure 2; then the "divider," a light which will be red if the State has a McKinley, green if it has gone for linyan, and if it has gone for Paimer—then three white indicating the figure 3. The signal reads '23-bas gone for McKinley." The result in ever State will be represented in a similar manner. State is a doubtful and important one, the

The ghosts, goblins and other mysterious creatures who were supposed to be abroad last evening met with so much competi-tion from the paraders that they were considerably hampered in their movements. This, of course, applies to the early ghosts. Those due to show up around midnight had only the holdover enthusiasm of the parade to deal with.

In spite of the parade there is no doubt that many youthful New-Yorkers took the opportunity last night of bobbing for apples, teasing nuts and test-ing other orthodox schemes for ascertaining their Halloween has been celebrated from time immemorial. It is said that the Scotch were the originators of it, as the majority of the love tests come from them. The night is celebrated in many other ways than those which truly characterize it. Dinner parties are given, dancing and card parties are held, and home theatricals are made to take the place of walking downstairs backward and trying to see a lover's face in a looking-glass at midnight. College men are prone to recognize the occasion by some sort of an outbreak. The custom, however, is slowly dying away.

CAUGHT IN A CORONER'S HOUSE

WOUNDED BURGLAR CAPTURED AFTER HE HAD TAKEN REFUGE IN MR. FITZPATRICK'S HOME.

The neighborhood of Henry, Monroe and Madison sts. was thrown into an uproar about 3 o'clock yesterday morning by the presence of burglars in the yard in the rear of Coroner Fitzpatrick's home. at No. 258 Henry-st., and the bold attempts to kill Policeman Michael W. Collins, of the Madison-st. station. One of the burglars, named Frank Freeman, was captured by the officer in Coroner Fitz-patrick's house, with two bullet-wounds in his left breast, received in a manner that at present is a mystery About 3 o'clock the officer herd three pistol-shots fired in rapid succession in Montgomery-st. He rushed in that direction, and at the house of Po-liceman Dowling, of the Oak-st. station, No. 27 Montgomery-st., saw the latter leaning out of the window. "There are bugglars in the yard!" yelled Dowling, who was in his night shirt. Collins was admitted to the house, and Dowling explained that he had fired the shots to alarm the officer. Collins rushed into the rear yard just in time to see the dark form of a man going over a fence. lins yelled to him, and was answered by a shot from a revolver in another corner of the yard. The yard was intensely dark, and as the bullet whistled by his ear the officer hesitated a minute. Two more shots followed in quick succession, and by the flash in the dark the officer saw a man pointing the pistol directly at him. The officer rushed toward him, but the burglar sprang over the fence and disappeared. Collins jumped over the fence into the next yard just in time to see the yesterday was probably $7,000,000 or $5,000,000, and | first burglar scaling another fence. His chase led him into Coroner Fitzpatrick's yard, where the burglar disappeared from view. A hasty examina-tion showed that a small window leading into the basement of the Coroner's house had been forced short. "I give in," said the burgiar. "I am wounded."

The noise of the struggle aroused Coroner Fitzpatrick's family. The female members of the household began to scream, and the Coroner, grabbing an old blunderbuss, rushed down the stairs to the officer's assistance.

The burgiar was bleeding from the two wounds in his left breast. He put on a boid front. He said he was no burgiar, but was in Henryst, when he heard people yelling from the windows. He started in pursuit of a burgiar he saw running, and followed him into Coroner Fitzpatrick's yard, where the burgiar fired the shots at him. He said he had chassed the burgiar into the house.

When the burgiar was searched at the station five pawntickets were found in his pockets. He was taken to the Gouverneur Hospital, where his wounds were pronounced dangerous. He gave the name of Frank Freeman, and said he lived at No. 250 Cherryst. He is twenty-nine years old.

Soon after the capture Jacob Glass, of No. 24 Henryst. reported that about 2.55 yesterday morning he and his wife were awakened by hearing some one ransacking their apartments. The man field when they screamed. Glass missed is from his clothes. The man escaped into the yard. The police are endeavoring to learn how Freeman received his wounds. The officer did not draw his revolver, and Folloman Dowling says he fired his revolver, in the air when he alarmed Policeman Collins. The police think that two burgiars were weeking independently of each other, and that the one who got away mistock Freeman for an officer. The latter was unable to appear in the Essex Market Court yesterday. The doctors at Gouverneur Hospital probed unsuccessfully for the bullet. The man was later removed to Believue.

IN DOUBT AS TO HOW TO TREAT "KUZ."

THE GOAT DEVOURS AN AMERICAN FLAG WITH

A PICTURE OF BRYAN' ATTACHED. Kosciusko familiarly called "Kuz," the boss goat in the Central Park Menagerie, is in a precarious condition. His stomach is lined with an American flag, and the question that puzzles the animal's keeper is, "Will it agree with him?" Yesterday afternoon a small boy sauntered past the goat inclosure with an American flag, upon which was the picture of William J. Bryan. The youthful joker dropped one end of the flag over the wire fence and shook it in the face of the sedate Mr. Kosciusko. "Kuz" eyed the tempting bait suspiciously, and then nibbled slowly at one corner of it. The stars and the field of blue soon disappeared in the munching jaws of "Kuz." He stopped for a moment, gurgled contentedly and gave a last and looked at his empty hand a second, and, realizing that he would never again see that particular flag, sauntered further on, with the remark to a tiny maid who had watched the affair, "Well, I guess a goat can stand anything. What do you think, size."

Director Smith says he doesn't know whether to treat "Kuz" for blood poisoning or not, as the goat may be in perfect sympathy with the Chicago plat-form and candidate.
